Mount Everest is in Asia and it is the highest mountain in the world. A lot of people try to climb Mount Everest every year, but it isn't easy. It takes about 40 days to climb it and it is really cold up there! Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norgay climbed it first, in 1953.

The longest river

The River Nile is the longest river in the world. It is in Africa and it goes through 10 countries.

The Nile is very important for life in Africa. A lot of special plants and animals live in or near the Nile. For example, one animal is the Nile crocodile and it is one of the biggest crocodiles in the world!

The largest and hottest desert

The Sahara is in Africa, too, and it is the largest and hottest desert in the world. In the Sahara, there isn't much water because it doesn't often rain, and the weather is really hot and dry.
